Kidman was a little stronger than Stack, but lacked the phenominal support which held Stack up in the pinches. Kidman was hard to hit most of the game, but the hits were bunched with the errors and counted. He fanned twelve batters.

In the ninth, two walks, three hits and two errors netted the Aggles four runs. With three men on, one run in, and one out, Muir was sent in to relieve Stack. He walked the first man, forcing in a run. The next man hit the ball and when it was muffed two more runs came in. Muir tightened up here and the scoring ceased.

Dr. H. H. Mosier, who conducted the autopsy, last night, was one of the first witnesses at the inquest tonight. He testified a blow on the edge of the right jaw, the dislocation of the fourth cervical vertebra, the hemorrhage of the brain that followed, and the forcing of blood into the spinal canal, were causes of McCarty's death. He was on the stand for more than an hour and was questioned closely by Attorney A. Smith, who appeared for Pelkey and Burns.

Crown Prosecutor Shaw questioned Burns, who acknowledged that he promoted the fight, and that McCarty and Pelkey were to receive $5000 each, according to the agreement.
